

Information on participation ■ iF design awards 2014

Register now!

Dear All,

The competition for being awarded one of the coveted iF labels is entering the next round: you can now register your entries in the product, communication and packaging disciplines of the iF design awards 2014.

Creative minds from all over the world, including manufacturers, developers and designers, take part in the iF product design award. An international expert jury will assess, among other things, the design, the innovative value and the sustainability of entries, which can be submitted in 17 different categories.

A great reference: the iF communication design award 2014 will focus especially on innovative communication solutions. Advertising agencies, manufacturers and communication designers can submit their work in six categories.

Packaging that creates and shapes expectations takes center stage at the iF packaging design award 2014. The jury will assess entries in the seven categories of the iF packaging design award.

The winners in the iF design awards will be rewarded with a very unique service package:
